

Why is it assumed that the telephone, which enters peoples homes and lives directly, is a sales tool? It is a personal convenience to have a telephone. Privacy is difficult enough these days. We don't need people invading our "at home" time. Especially people who are selling something and are often persistent and annoying and who sometimes are scam artists. I will choose where I listen to sales pitches!